Baseball and tennis complex dedicated

Wife, mother, philanthropist—Georgia Southwestern State University honored the memory of Susan Kay Smith Monday, August, 6 by dedicating the baseball and tennis complex in her honor. Smith and husband, Roy Lee, have been generous supporters of Georgia Southwestern for many years. President Kendall A. Blanchard is shown, right, presenting a plaque to the Smith family who accepted it on the behalf of Roy Lee Smith. From right to left: daughter, Debra Stapleton; son-in-law, Walter Stapleton; daughter, Lisa Smith; and grandson, Jimmy Whaley. The night was filled with precious memories of her life and stories of her endless generosity, along with a video with interviews from friends and family. Before a crowd of hundreds Mayor Barry Blount declared August 6, 2007 as Susan Kay Smith Day
